Comprehensive Holistic Approaches to Dementia Care: A Clinician's Playbook

From differentiating delirium, dementia and depression to assessing falls or behaviors triggered by under-recognized/undertreated pain, therapists often are asked to provide expertise in treating people with neurocognitive disorders. This workshop will provide therapists with the tools and background they need to confidently care for patients with varying levels of dementia.

Participants in this seminar will learn how to determine stage-specific interventions, and how to cue staff to execute them beyond the therapy arena. We will also review the basic needs that must be anticipated for patients with mid to later stage dementia, including adapting to changes in proprioception for balance and fall prevention; the influence of the environment on functional abilities and behaviors; and specialized approaches specific to dementia care such as validation and Montessori strategies which can maximize the success of the therapist's interventions.
